Dear Dr. Goodarzi,

On behalf the Society, we have the great pleasure of informing you that you were nominated and chosen to receive the Hacquebard Award.

The Hacquebard Award is a meritorious achievement award presented by the Canadian Society for Coal Science and Organic Petrology in recognition of professional excellence and significant contributions to Coal Science in Canada.

You are the second CSCOP member to receive this honour, which is reserved for members who have distinguished themselves in coal petrology nationally and internationally. Your long-time commitment to the teaching and promotion of coal science and organic petrology in Canada and your research record in many areas of pure and applied coal and organic petrology as well as your work in environmental geochemistry is recognized nationally and internationally. Your contribution to the advancement of coal science in Canada is laudable and you are very deserving of this honour.

The announcement will be made at this years Annual Meeting on September 1st, 2002, in Banff, and you will be presented with the Hacquebard Medal at the TSOP Business Luncheon on Monday, September 2nd, at the Banff Centre, during the conference, Emerging Concepts in Organic Petrology and Geochemistry.

Sincerely,

Judith Potter
